Principles of Communication Engineering [John M. Wozencraft, Irwin Mark Jacobs] on Amazon.com. FREE shipping on qualifying offers. The content and scope of this highly regarded book--the first overall synthesis of its kind--is reflected in three important objectives: (1) to establish a sound frame of reference for further study in communication

This is the second post in the series aimed at developing a better understanding of Shannon's capacity equation. In this post let us discuss the bounds on communication given the signal power and bandwidth constraint.

Bounds on Communication based on Shannon's capacity

In electronics, noise temperature is one way of expressing the level of available noise power introduced by a component or source. The power spectral density of the noise is expressed in terms of the temperature (in kelvins) that would produce that level of Johnson-Nyquist noise, thus:

@Abhijith: Nice approach. One would also need to look at the range requirement of the communication link. To start off, assuming a free-space path loss model, transmit power and receiver noise bandwidth one can get a good estimate for the range.
